Text 5:

"Intelligence" is so complex that psychology is still in the process of trying to understand it. Among the various definitions that have been given are: The ability to learn, to adjust to one's environment, to do abstract thinking, (that is, thinking which deals with the symbols and not with the actual objects), and the ability to profit by one's experience. Today some psychologists define intelligence as the ability to see and discover relationships, using not only data present to the senses but also data remembered, imagined, or guessed. In general, it is "the ability to see what ought to be done and how to do it".

Not in Bosnia-Herzegovina. There UNICEF's "week of tranquility" was launched to distribute supplies to more than a million Bosnian children. But a brutal Serbian campaign to consolidate holdings before the onset of winter is scuttling those plans.
